Major Anomalies

UNG — Natural Gas ETF -2.25%

Cause: Natural gas prices fell due to lack of geopolitical escalation in the Middle East despite tanker attacks, as oil price gains were not mirrored in gas markets.

Forward Impact: Expect continued volatility in natural gas as supply concerns persist, but near-term downside may be limited if weather demand increases.

Hot Now

- XLE — Strong 1-month gains and positive 5-day momentum, indicating sustained demand.
- XLV — Consistent positive returns across all timeframes, showing broad-based strength.
- XLK — Solid 1-month performance with accelerating 1-day gain, suggesting renewed tech leadership.

Cold but Worth Watching

- XLU — Negative 1-month return despite recent stabilization, potential for mean reversion if defensive bid returns.

- XLY — Underperforming relative to other cyclicals, but positive 1-day and 5-day moves hint at early turnaround.
- XLC — Weak 1-month performance but strong 1-day surge, indicating possible sentiment shift.

Momentum is favoring energy, healthcare, and technology, while utilities, consumer discretionary, and communication services show signs of potential reversal.

Daily Conclusion

---

Oil's surge on renewed Iran supply risks is the dominant macro theme, driving energy-led sector rotation while defensive and consumer names lag.
