1. Four signs it is about to get uglier in the bond market as yields rise - Reuters

Reuters — 2026-10-09 16:18

Bond market faces rising yields with four warning signs, as 10-year Treasury yields hit 5.244% and 30-year yields reach 5.60%, both 24-year highs. Fed Governor Waller suggested more rate hikes may be needed to combat inflation above 2% for over five years. The Treasury sold $22 billion in 30-year notes with strong indirect bidder demand at 72%. Geopolitical tensions with Iran and Middle East conflict continue to pressure oil prices, with WTI at $91.85 and Brent at $104.72.

2. Treasury yields steady as Trump strikes diplomatic tone on Iran ahead of midterms

CNBC — 2026-10-09 08:24

Treasury yields were steady Friday after a volatile week, with 10-year yields at 5.244% and 30-year at 5.60%, both hitting 24-year highs earlier in the week. The 2-year yield rose to 4.789% on Fed rate expectations. Strong demand for Treasury auctions saw indirect bidders take 72% of 30-year notes. Fed Governor Waller indicated more rate hikes may be needed but not necessarily immediately. Trump's diplomatic tone on Iran ahead of midterms and Middle East conflict kept oil prices elevated, with WTI up 0.39% to $91.85 and Brent up 0.42% to $104.72.

3. Oil prices settle higher as more production shut ahead of hurricane - Reuters

5. Verizon stock heads for worst day since 2002 as SpaceX U.S. network plans whack telcos

CNBC — 2026-10-09 16:26

Telecom stocks sold off sharply after SpaceX announced a deal to acquire nationwide spectrum for Starlink mobile service. Verizon fell 8.75% (worst day since 2002), T-Mobile dropped 13.27%, and AT&T fell 9.81% (worst days since 2013 and 2000 respectively). SpaceX stock rose about 1%. The deal involves up to 14 MHz of paired spectrum in the 800 MHz band from Grain Management, with FCC Chair Carr noting competition is good for consumers and $100 billion of spectrum coming to market over two years.

10. Tech stocks' resilience has puzzled investors. The options market could hold some clues

Tech stocks have remained resilient despite surging rates and AI concerns, puzzling investors. Options market data shows traders are most prepared for a pullback since early summer, with QQQ put/call ratio at 1.49, highest since late June. The ratio has favored puts since August despite big-tech stocks hitting all-time highs through Tuesday. Major bearish options trades were seen in SPY and Meta on Wednesday, and a $20 million bearish bet was placed after hours on QQQ. The setup is puzzling as hedges could provide support if selloffs occur, but SPY and SPX put/call ratios remain near average.

Major Anomalies

ETH-USD — Ethereum -3.95%

Cause: Ethereum fell as risk appetite rotated toward equities amid the tech recovery rally and chip-sector trades, pressuring crypto.

Forward Impact: ETH-USD may remain volatile, with direction hinging on broader risk sentiment and any regulatory or macro catalysts in the coming sessions.

USO — Oil ETF +2.55%

Cause: Oil rallied on supply concerns and upbeat demand signals tied to the week's earnings and inflation data, lifting the crude-tracking ETF.

Forward Impact: USO will likely stay sensitive to upcoming inflation prints and OPEC+ supply signals, with further gains dependent on demand staying resilient.

Real Estate	+0.7%	+0.4%	-5.1%

Hot Now

- Consumer Staples (XLP) — Defensive bid with positive returns across all three timeframes and the strongest 5d gain among defensives
- Energy (XLE) — Broad-based momentum with the best 1d and 5d performance, signaling cyclical/commodity leadership

- Communication Services (XLC) — Consistent positive returns across 1d, 5d, and 1m, showing resilient growth-defensive balance

Cold but Worth Watching

- Financials (XLF) — Worst 1m performer despite positive 1d/5d, deeply oversold if rate fears ease
- Real Estate (XLRE) — Steepest 1m decline with only modest 5d stabilization, high rate-sensitivity mean-reversion candidate
- Utilities (XLU) — Sharp 1m drop but strong 5d bounce, suggesting early bottoming as a defensive yield play

Defensive and energy sectors are leading as investors rotate away from rate-sensitive cyclical and long-duration growth amid lingering macro uncertainty.

Daily Conclusion

Rising bond yields are driving a defensive rotation into consumer staples, energy, and communication services while pressuring rate-sensitive financials, real estate, and utilities.
