Hot Now

- Energy — Energy shows strong momentum across 1d, 5d, and 1m, likely driven by rising oil prices and supply concerns.
- Utilities — Utilities exhibit defensive strength with positive returns across all timeframes, benefiting from rate cut expectations and safe-haven demand.
- Consumer Staples — Consumer Staples provide steady gains, reflecting defensive rotation amid tech weakness and economic uncertainty.

Cold but Worth Watching

- Technology — Technology has the worst 1m performance (-6.2%) but may rebound if AI sentiment improves or rates decline.
- Consumer Discretionary — Consumer Discretionary is negative across 5d and 1m, but potential mean-reversion if consumer spending data surprises to the upside.
- Materials — Materials are weak on 1m but positive on 1d and 5d, suggesting early signs of stabilization; watch for infrastructure spending catalysts.

Defensive sectors like Energy, Utilities, and Staples lead as growth/tech underperform, signaling a risk-off rotation amid macro uncertainty.

Daily Conclusion

Defensive rotation dominates as Energy, Utilities, and Consumer Staples lead while Technology and Consumer Discretionary lag, reflecting risk-off positioning amid no macro surprises.
